The same keep that the same shall save it."

He took for his text: "Whosever will come after me, les him deay himself and ake up his croad saily and follow me; for whosever shall lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it."

He said the average man of the world was selfish, and asserted that those who sought to attain their ideal of unselfishness would find themselves mistaken in the end. But he regarded it a high compliment to humanity that the great second of the same of the world was selfish, and asserted that those who sought to attain their ideal of unselfishness would find themselves mistaken in the end. But he regarded it a high compliment to humanity that the great second of the same of the world was selfish, and asserted that those who sought to attain their ideal of unselfishness would find themselves mistaken in the end. But he regarded it a high compliment to humanity that the great second of the same world find themselves mistaken in the end. But he regarded it a high compliment to humanity that the great second of the same world that men do to you, do you seem to them." This implies an ability to do it, by a power within us, but not of to do it, by a power within us, but not of the do-dilke principle in divided the principle in the world had wrought great mitchief in this world. Many a young man has started out in life with noble impulses and a sympathetic nature, but coming constantly in contact with men who antagonized in their whole conduct this high ideal of humanity, they seemed compelled, in shere selfideense, to adopt the same course. Thus they become cold, hardhearted, misanthropic.

There were three great ducators to connerteat this said effect in our make up: First, the family, with its sacred discount of the same in the whole changes, to adopt the same course. Thus they become cold, hardhearted, misanthropic in the family with its sacred discount make the prices of sales and a sympathetic mature, b public, and in maintaining the konor and integrity of other nations as well, demonstrate this fact beyond a doubt. A long line of men, not from the schools mainly but from the plow, the work-bench, the counting-room, are seen leaving happy homes and marching with firm tread, to the field of conflict. The groans of the dying, and the certainty of meeting the same fate, dampen not a whit the determination to bring back every foot of this wast domain to subjection to our a prious flag. This is self-abnegation on a large scale.

But the great educator, that which lifts the soul to a higher plane, far above the sordid instincts of fallen humanity, is the religion of Christ. The soul, born again, lives in a new atmosphere, moves with higher aspirations, and triumphs over self. The man of the world, the woman of "society" can't understand a over self. The man of the world, the woman of "society" can't understand a Florence Nightingale, a Howard, or Elizabeth Fry. Self is their entire world. But the love of Christ, touching the soul, permeating the whole being, inspires to noble daring for the good of others. The Great Teacher set the example. "He endured the cross, despised the shame." He laid down His life for His brethren. The long line of Christian heroes in the ages past demonstrates the power of Christianity to lift the soul out of this narrow world of self. Then, and not till then, the soul aspires to a higher plane of Christian living. It is easy to glide slong in the current with the average Christian, but to rise above the common experience self-denial, this sacrifice for others, instead of destroying our happiness, will greatly increase it. He had often conversed with a young, frail girl who, for the love of parents, toiled for years, abjuring the circle of youthful pleasures, and every heart-throb was one of delight. As the years went by, her hands grow thinner, her face paler, and her form less erect; but love impelled her on in this track. How far below this noble life were those whose aspirations were mainly to glitter in the social circle of fashion!

This aketch gives but an imperfect dea to the reader of this effective discourse. The locture in the afternoon in the solicage chapel was delivered by President Bovard. His subject was, "Some of the Functions of a University," By way of introduction, he called the attention of the students to the importance of learning to hear. Like the beasts of the field or the fowls of the air that prick up their ears or turn the head in a direction, so that the ear will catch the sound, so should students aim to catch every word, every thought. As the eye is trained to hear.

The first function mentioned was purity. Purity was the basis of all strength. Impurity of thought, word or deed robs us of strength, of desire and strength of purpose for the real work of life. It is ueseless, worse than useless, to spend a day in halls of learning, nuless the matter of the mind and heart be well guarded.

Secondly, a university should have a greed, helief in God, and in the immortality and responsibility of the human acul. No institution of learning can prosper, or ever has prospered, that ignored a personal, self-existent God. He spoke, as an illustration, of John Hopkins College. No school had ever been more largely endowed in money and brain. Yet its energies flagged, and the faculty have come to see the necessity of inscribing on her banner, in plain letters: "There is a self-raisent God."

Thurdly, there must be ambition. Ambition to gain patronage, but this in its-general college of the college. The college of connecract this sad defect in our makeup: First, the family; second, our country; third, religion.

The family, with its sacred ties, is a great factor in this work. He had traveled from city to city, in heathen countries, and never before had fully appreciated the sacred influence of home, in seeing almost an entire absence of this divine institution. But, under the influence of Christian civilization, how it melts and moulds our nature. The husband and father, as well as the mother and daughter, mutually learn the importance of self denial. They find constantly the necessity of yielding their own wishes for the good of others. This leads to harmony and a happiness akin to heaven:

The love of country is patent in climinating this foul blot upon our nature. The deeds of heroism and self-sacrific as exhibited in cetablishing the Swiss Republic, and in maintaining the konor and integrity of other nations as well, demonstrate this fact beyond a doubt. A long line of men, not from the schools mainly but from the plow, the work-bench, the counting-room, are seen leaving happy homes and marching

In These sage in all cases combined with the proper conductional remedies for the liver, stomach, nervous system and blood, etc. In order to show how quickly luny diseases are cured by our system of treatment, combined with our glorious climate, we give a few extracts from letters received from our former patients:

Thomas Archur, San Francisco Cal., writes: For 22 years Lwas efficted with cates that it is a serial desiness, the right one seemingly entirely deaf. I came under Dr. Williams's care in March of this veer, and at the end of July I was as sound as a bill.

John Wesley Lee, Eaq., Portland, Or., writes: Dr. Williams, Dear fir—I am still as ever I was in my life. You will remember when I came to you I had to be led by my daughter, the granulations on my eyelids were so bad, and I want to say to the good people of Los angeles that you cured me entirely in just 12 weeks from the day I began irestment. May God continue to prosper you.

Mrs. James Griswold, Buffiko, N. Y. writes: I had known of Dr. Williams's whites in Los Angeles, Osl., and heard Dr. Williams was there, I placed myself under treatment for asthma, or asthmatic consumption, as most doctors call ed it, and although I had been a great sufferer for 12 years, I have not had an attack since the first inhalation from Dr. Williams, which was about a year ago. Hon. Erastus Kelly, Montreat, Canada, says: The Southern California climate is shead of anything I have ever enjoyed, and yot it was insufficient to cure me of tubercular consumption, second stage, until assisted by Dr. Williams's medicated inhalations, which did the work in 5 months from the time I began treatment.

Witson Grant, Esq., Louisville, Ky., writes: For 19 years I was a sufferer from cutarrh, which latterly got into my lungs and produced catarrhal consumption. I lost 60 pounds in weight and became so weak I could not walk 160 rods. After I had spent 6 months in Suthern California. I concluded to try Dr. Williams, of whom so much had been said, and I am gratified to know that in 4% months he has cured me entirely, and in a few days I returned home delighted to my delighted family and friends.

A Rejoinder From Mr. Stearns' Side. To the Editor of the Times-SIR Mr. Velsir, at the meeting of property owners of East Los Angeles, Saturday Our Democratic friends will assemble in convention to-day, to tackle the hopeless task of placing a county ticket in the field. It is notable that the Democratic statesmen have been very backward in coming forward this year to offer themselves as sacrifices on the liter of days and friendship. offer themselves as sacrifices on the ar of duty and friendship. Los Angeles, Sept. 25. Venturous Jason. To the Editor of the Times-SIR: I think I am justified in expressing the sentiments of some citizens whom I know, and which have not yet been fidence on your part, request the return of this letter. I will then know you the location of the new city hall. Everymean me no barm, for I will not answer body knows that the city is growing in the direction of Santa Monica. North I will not deviate from this rule, and and East Los Angeles will be nowhere, on my sacred oath and honor, before compared with the southwest quarter compared with the southwest quarter of the city. Even the northwest, destired to be developed so much by the four railroads running to the Ostrich farm, will not be able to compare with this section, as it will be in the near future. We certainly ought to go west, for obvious reasons (wether we go south or not).

All of the above-mentioned citizens All of the above-mentioned citizens are unanimous for a location as far west as Washington street, and some go as far as Santa Monica, which I think is premature.

I will sell my lot on Washington street for $500, and feel safe in assuring enough land around it, at the same N. Spring st., rooms 17 and 18.
